

FALL 2017
LAR 150B: AMERICAN DESIGN ON THE LAND
ONLINE CLASS
INDV 102 - TIER 1 GEN EDUCATION

- Who put this here? While walking around outside, you stop to admire a bronze sculpture in the nearby park. Have you ever wondered who put this here or even why this sculpture exists? Perhaps you notice that the bronze object actually mirrors the nearby hill, picturesquely framing the city between them. You then ask yourself...
- Was this placed here on purpose or by accident? You go up and examine a nearby sign. It reads "Gas Works Park. Designed by Richard Haag, Landscape Architect." Now you know the name of the place, who designed it, and that this park was designed with purposeful intent. Then you wonder...
- A Landscape What? A landscape architect. They have designed countless places synonymous with American design, such as Yosemite National Park, San Diego Zoo, Disneyland, Central Park, the 9/11 Memorial, and probably some of your own favorite outdoors spaces. If any of this sounds interesting to you then consider taking...

---

LAR 150B: American Design on the Land is a fully-online INDV 102, 3-credit course being offered as a Fall 2017 course. The class is based around weekly video content, discussion prompts, weekly quizzes, and a research paper. American Design on the Land explores the history of American landscape design and covers topics such as Why we Enjoy Outdoor Spaces, Native American Sacred Spaces, the Genesis of National Parks, and Eco-Conscious Modern Design to name a few. Enroll today!